

The Myers-Callahan Connection

The Boston Globe (Boston, MA)

August 21, 2005

MYERS AND CALLAHAN TEAM UP FOR OILERS

When Ryan Myers throws a pass to Joe Callahan during a Eastern Football League game for the Randolph Oilers, it is old hat. The two have been connecting on passes since 1999, when they were teammates for the Holbrook-Avon High School cooperative football team. Myers moved into the starting role for the Oilers last season, firing eight touchdown passes in the final three games of the season. In high school, Callahan led Division 7 receivers in touchdown receptions, while Myers finished second in TD strikes. They led the Bulldogs to the Mayflower League Small School title.